Introducing your awards...

The Judging Process

A world-class panel of leading architecture and design practitioners representing all elements of the industry will assess the entries in the A&D Awards 2022.

In 2020, we successfully introduced a two-tier judging system to further enhance the quality and accountability of our judging process. This system will continue for A&D Awards 2022. It operates as follows:

Round One

Judges will be split into groups according to their area of expertise. They will assess entries based on the following criteria and award a score of up to maximum 30 points:

- What were the objectives of the client's brief and what was the practice's creative solution? (10 points)
- How did the practice go about executing its solution? What innovative design elements, materials, approaches were used to meet the client's brief? Is it sustainable and environmentally friendly? How successful was the project in achieving its objectives? (20 points)

Entrants will be asked to supply high-resolution images to support their submission. Although the images will not be awarded points, they will play a critical role in helping the judges assess the aesthetic quality and successful execution of the project.

Round One judging will take place online, via the A&D Awards platform. Judges will not judge their own work at any stage in the process and will score each entry on its own merit rather than against other entries in the same category.

Entries that receive a benchmark score (generally about 70% of the possible 30 points) or more, will be shortlisted for Round Two judging. Entrants who make the shortlist will receive a Certificate of Excellence and a digital banner recognising their achievement and an exclusive invitation to the A&D Awards 2022 Gala Presentation ceremony. (Note: For the past two years, we could not hold a physical event due to Covid-19 restrictions. We hope to be able to return to a physical event in 2022, government regulations permitting.)

If all entries in a category fail to achieve the benchmark level, there will be no award winners in the category.

Shortlisted entries will be announced and promoted through the A&D Awards 2022 section of the PERSPECTIVE website (www.perspectiveglobal.com) as well as our social media channels. Being shortlisted is an important achievement that you can be proud of, and it puts you in the running for the even bigger awards!

The Judging Process

Round Two

Judges will assess the shortlisted entries to determine who will be the recipients of the prestigious Gold, Silver and Bronze A&D Awards in each category. They can discuss and debate the merits of each project collectively before scoring them individually.

Judges will re-assess the shortlisted entries and rank order the top 5 projects in each category.

Judges' individual scores will be aggregated and divided by the number of judges to establish an average score for each entry. The top 3 highest average scoring entries will earn the Gold, Silver and Bronze awards respectively. As stated previously, judges will not be able to adjudicate entries submitted by their own practice.

If a category has fewer than 5 shortlisted entries, judges will still rank the entries and those with the highest average scores will receive awards. If a category has only one shortlisted entry, it will be automatically become a Gold Award winner.

A&D Awards – Practice of the Year

Introduced in 2019, the A&D Practice of the Year Award will go to the practice which has amassed the highest amount of points from the combined score of their shortlisted entries in the A&D 2022 Awards.
